He then moved on to jazz studies as a teenager, but it wasn't until college that the multi-instrumentalist started checking out other ethnic musical styles. Incorporating these sounds into his own jazz-oriented compositions differentiated Derado from his peers and soon his unique approach had caught the ear of more established artists. He performed with Gary Burton, Peter Erskine, Dan Liebman, Craig Handy, Bob Moses, as well as Andy Gonzales, to name but a few, and toured extensively with various bands in Europe, South America, Russia and the Middle East.
